EXPERT'S SPEAK

Dr. Sangeeta Pant, Dean Chitkara College of Education, Chitkara University, Punjab

Chitkara College of Education, Chitkara University takes pride and an immense pleasure to be associated with APSWDP. We feel fortunate to have associated with absolute professionals. We together aim to work for the betterment and upliftment of the society keeping in mind the National Education Policy 2020 and the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) to sensitize through Community Driven Development programs. All the events conducted collaboratively have been of world-class, high quality, highly enriching and enlightening. The speakers invited were renowned and have strong content knowledge. The coordination for the events has been a smooth sailing and an immense support rendered. We look forward to a long and fruitful association.

Jas K Shan, Speaker, Life Coach, Explorer & Wellness Expert, Chandigarh

Working as a group can accomplish more, and more productively, than one person can on their own. Sharing talks with initiatives of APSWDP has proven to be one of such experiences. The commonness of thoughts and ideas have been the highlight of the association. Wish the best in years to come.

AN INTRODUCTION TO UNITED NATIONS SUSTAINABLE DEVELOPMENT GOALS 3 (UN-SDG 3): GOOD HEALTH AND WELL BEING

- *DR. KUMAR PUSHKAR/DR. PRIYANKA
KHANNA KAUSHIK

Introduction

The Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) are a set of 17 global goals to end poverty, protect the planet and good health for all. Goal 3 of it with mantra of "leaving no one behind" pursues the agenda of health which is universal in scope and requires a comprehensive, collective & integrated approach for sustainability. The key to the agenda is "Universal Health Coverage" which must be safe, effective, equitable, affordable and accessible in order to achieve all the targets of the goal and will help in developing a resilient health care ecosystem in all aspects. SDG laid emphasis on inter sectorian, integrative and parallel approach for the social, environmental and unparalleled successes have been achieved particularly in terms of economic component of health, thus recognizing the interdependence among them through SDGs viz. poverty reduction, access to safe drinking water for the developing countries, fight against HIV/AIDS pandemic, malaria, and tuberculosis. While continuing the progress made in MDGs, it has incorporated several newer aspects like health financing, development of health systems, NCD, RTA, Substance abuse and Environmental health.

SDG 3: How it is related with multiple other SDGs

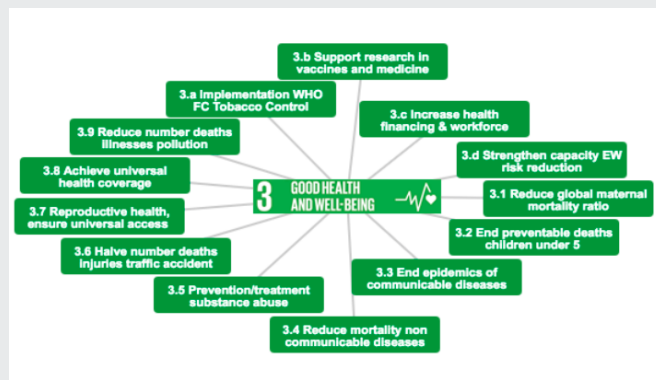

Health affects and in turn gets affected by many non-health goals comprising social, economic & environmental determinants. The concept of universal health is not only Reproductive, maternal, newborn, and child health. The Global Strategy for women, children, and adolescent health is fully aligned with SDG and revolves around the theme of Survive-Thrive-Transform. It has identified youth as a venerable population and potential leading risk factors for adolescent death. It considers all determinants of health holistically but also accolades participation of all sectors for the attainment of desired public health status. Intersectorian and integrated preventive approaches can nullify the effect of modifiable risk factors on health and make it difficult for non-modifiable risk factors from attaining their whole spectrum.

COVID 19 Pandemic and Health

Ensuring healthy lives and promoting well-being at all ages is essential to sustainable development. Currently, the world is facing a global health crisis unlike any other – COVID-19 is spreading human suffering, destabilizing the global economy, and upending the lives of billions of people around the globe.

Before the pandemic, major progress was made in improving the health of millions of people. Significant strides were made in increasing life expectancy and reducing some of the common killers associated with child and maternal mortality.

But more efforts are needed to fully eradicate a wide range of diseases and address many different persistent and emerging health issues. By focusing on providing more efficient funding of health systems, improved sanitation and hygiene, and increased access to physicians, significant progress can be made in helping to save the lives of millions. Health emergencies such as COVID-19 pose a global risk and have shown the critical need for preparedness.

The United Nations Development Programme highlighted huge disparities in countries' abilities to cope with and recover from the COVID-19 crisis. The pandemic provides a watershed moment for health emergency preparedness and for investment in critical 21st century public services.

Accelerating Progress under SDG 3

In order to accelerate progress and address new health challenges, all actors, including the private sector need to partner to develop health care solutions that work for people, families, communities and nations. At minimum business has a responsibility to respect all human rights, including the right to health. Small, medium and large companies can both benefit from and contribute to achieving healthy societies. The SDGs provide a new opportunity for the private sector to support the delivery of health needs around the world through their products, services and business activities including value chains and distribution networks, communication activities, occupational health and safety practices and provision of employee benefits. By ensuring that workers have safe working conditions and access to health services, companies establish healthier staff and better relationships which in many cases has positive effects on productivity.

Limitations and Potential Implications

In 2017, the UN's High Level Political Forum published a thematic review of SDG 3. Investing in multi-stakeholder partnerships to remove barriers to equitable health services which are responsive to increasingly diverse population health needs, and to reach those most further behind first is essential for the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development. Strong commitment by UN Member States and the international community to ensuring good health and wellbeing is achieved is therefore emphasised. An analysis in 2017 showed that the input, outcome and impact indicators has limitations in their approach. SDG 3 tracks population health across many different disease states, however it possesses several limitations according to this analysis. It does not track protection from financial risk, primary health care inputs, how satisfied users are with the health care system and does not provide with a way to tackle the prevention, diagnosing, treatment and management of various diseases. Firstly, primary health care. There are no indicators for primary health care, only two indicators for resource management; health care worker density and hospital access. Secondly, no comprehensive approach is present for being able to diagnose, prevent, manage and treat any disease. An impact indicator gets information from a preceding output indicator from either public or health care services but never both. This means that SDG 3 focuses on targeted interventions for priority diseases, but does not promote a approach for preventing, diagnosing, treating and managing any disease.

Lastly, the indicators do not track financial risk protection or user satisfaction using health care services. If people are not protected against financial implications of using the health care system, this can lead to a decrease in access of care. Policymakers should be aware that by providing services to improve population health, this will have implications on financial status and satisfaction with the healthcare system which is not portrayed in SDG 3

Conclusion

SDG 3 addresses the biomedical field and health-related research in an extensive way, addressing not only their topics and habits but also their relationships with civil society. It has developed quantification and analysis of the roles of other potential drivers of health development, the interactions that may exist between different SDGs, and the possible indirect impacts on health from other SDGs to produce a more concise, cohesive and actionable framework for the SDGs. It is high time, it must mention Health as a human right. Furthermore, it should incorporate School health, geriatric health and application of newer health technologies like telemedicine. COVID-19 pandemic has threatened to erase the progresses made in RMNCH, health infrastructure and life expectancy. Advent of COVID-19 pandemic and increasing impact of environment & geopolitical conflicts warrant a more dynamic, pragmatic and exhaustive interdisciplinary approach along with adequate threat mitigating measures to address all determinants of the health true to sustainable development. Complete lack of adequate data, particularly from tropical and southern countries, calls for a profound reorganization of monitoring, surveillance and tracing systems for animal health, public health and welfare statistics.

APSWDP PROGRAM & EVENTS

Virtual Dialogue on “Groundwater: Making the invisible visible” on the occasion of World Water Day.

Aligned to the UN SDGs and initiatives of The Climate Reality Project India, to demand real climate action, the Association of Professional Social Workers & Development Practitioners (APSWDP) in partnership with Chitkara University, Punjab, has conceived a Virtual Program/ Dialogue on “Groundwater: Making the invisible visible” on the occasion of World Water Day on 24 March 2022. The focus for this year is groundwater, which is a dwindling resource overused by many countries. It is about taking action to tackle the global water crisis. A core focus of World Water Day is to support the achievement of Sustainable Development Goal 6: water and sanitation for all by 2030. Ms. Elsie Gabriel resource person made the participants re-think on human activities (including population- and economic growth) and climate variability, which are rapidly increasing the pressure on groundwater resources: serious depletion and pollution problems reported for many parts of the world. She emphasised to put a spotlight on this invisible resource, enhance knowledge exchange and collaboration, and thereby increase the awareness of the importance of taking care of our groundwater. The Special Guest of the Day Dr. Charu Khosla, Dean International Affairs, Chitkara University made the audience aware of the depletion of groundwater resources due to excessive usage of resources and how Chitkara University is working on rain harvesting to recycle the ground water, recharging the groundwater tables through interlocking tiles, and sensitized the participants to work ethically on the four important pillars - Science, Economics, Governance and Spiritual Connection.

APSWDP CAPACITY BUILDING PROGRAMME FOR MARGINALIZED AND HIGH RISK GROUPS

Commemoration of Republic Day 2022 coinciding Capacity Building & Empowerment of Stakeholders.

The Association of Professional Social Workers and Development Practitioners (APSWDP) had conceived to organize a Community Event-cum-Capacity Building for the High-Risk Groups (HRGs), also categorized as vulnerable and marginalized minority community on the eve of the Republic Day on 26th January 2022 at New Indira Colony, Manimajra, Sector-13, Chandigarh under Composite Targeted Intervention Project (CTIP) on HIV/ AIDS. Sh. Sandeep Mittal, Deputy Director Targeted Intervention, Chandigarh State AIDS Control Society (CSACS) was the Chief Guest during the event.

Sh. Sandeep Mittal, the Chief Guest during the event while addressing the audience, mentioned regarding the Composite Targeted Intervention Project which is aimed at benefitting the High-Risk Groups (HRGs) and also for creating a welfare state for all those who are in dire need. Sh. Mittal also talked about various services that are provided under the umbrella of APSWDP and motivated HRGs present to avail such services which are provided free of cost. In addition, he also congratulated APSWDP for the meticulous planning in organizing the community and also for engaging them in various skill development courses which are free for them. Sh. Mittal also appreciated the efforts of TI staff under the dynamic leadership of Smt. Rekha Trivedi, Secretary General-cum-Project Director in preparing an atlas of all the hotspots of the project. Blankets were distributed to the Transgender and other HRGs being provided by Shri Rupinder Singh, Bebos Technologies under CSR support after the lunch break in the Drop-In-Centre (DIC) at its project office.

APSWDP REPORTER - SOCIAL WORK AND DEVELOPMENT OPPORTUNITIES FOR YOUTHWorld Development Report 2022: Finance for an Equitable Recovery - A Report

The COVID-19 pandemic triggered the largest global economic crisis in more than a century. In 2020, economic activity contracted in 90 percent of countries, the world economy shrank by about 3 percent, and global poverty increased for the first time in a generation. Governments enacted a swift and encompassing policy response that alleviated the worst immediate economic impacts of the crisis. However, the government response also exacerbated a number of economic fragilities. World Development Report 2022: Finance for an Equitable Recovery examines the central role of finance in the economic recovery from the pandemic. It highlights the consequences of the crisis most likely to affect emerging economies, and advocates a set of policies to mitigate the interconnected financial risks stemming from the pandemic and steer economies toward a sustainable and equitable recovery.
